Following the sale, Auctioneer and Expert-in-charge, Thomas Del Mar, commented: "Following closely on the heels of the remarkable success of the Higgins Armory auction in May we were delighted with the result. The auction included two further institutional properties, from The Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Art Institute of Chicago that were both 100% sold. The sale also included the second and final part of the Stern Collection that was well received. The highlight of the day was the Boutet pistols from the descendant family of the Viceroy Peru, achieving £57,600 to a private collector."
