Following the sale, Auctioneer and Expert-in-charge, Thomas Del Mar, commented: “The sale had some very strong results; notably the Indian jade daggers, the property of a Prince, which included some highly decorated and gem-set examples which were very well viewed before the sale with some strong bidding and exceptional prices. We were also pleased with the English firearms, which had some excellent results including £8,000 for a double flintlock carbine by Durs Egg and a number of strong prices for military firearms. We were delighted to welcome Clive Sinclair as a consultant to this sale. His expertise in cataloguing three distinguished groups of Japanese edged weapons and firearms was clearly appreciated and we were particularly impressed at the growing strength in this area.”
